ABSTRACT

A method that maintains an understanding at a client of those portions of a response that have been received over a network from a server and issues a request message from the client to the server for a portion of the response that has not been received at the client.

004098.P001